CAERULEA IS published annually by the Student Body of Polytechnic High School
Long Beach, California

FOREWORD

Formality has given way to informality in the 39th. edition of Caerulea. Informal pictures of school activities and sports are presented under 3 divisions, Fall, Winter and Spring. Clubs and classes are appropriately placed at the end of the book. An effort has been made to present the school year in logical order from the opening day of school September 15, 1941, to graduation and the last day of school June 19, 1942.

DEDICATION

The 1942 Caerulea is dedicated to the efforts being made by Polytechnic High School to help with National Defense. With our Country at war the need for the defense of our land stirs the heart of every freedom loving American youth. This year more than ever students are leaving Poly to go directly into vital defense work in our community, into airplane factories, shipyards, and oil refineries. Upon graduation many are joining the Army, Navy, and Marines. True to its educational purpose, Polytechnic High School is meeting the ever increasing demand for well trained, capable graduates.

Twelve volumes of Caerulea are kept on a table in my office. These books, bound in varicolored jackets, contain a pictorial history of Polytechnic High School activities. Now and then I thumb their pages for information about the clubs and organizations of this great school. Each time I am delighted with the many opportunities for participation in some worthwhile activity. For years this school has maintained an excellent program in athletics and clubs of many kinds.

Caerulea, itself, is one of these activities. This is the thirty-ninth year for this publication. Year by year, it has grown from a paper covered booklet into one of the best high school annuals of the country. Volume after volume shows the leadership and influence of the principal, Mr. Burcham, who took a vital interest in this work. Each annual also gives evidence of careful planning and work on the part of teachers and students.

Each student, if possible, should plan to buy a Caerulea annually, as the best means of keeping a record of high school days. In years to come you will value it even more highly than when in school. You will enjoy turning its pages to renew acquaintance with schoolmates and teachers. It will help you to recall with pride and satisfaction the days you spent in Polytechnic High School.

1942 Retirements

MARIE MAPLES PRESTON

Among the distinctive personal qualities that have made Marie Maples Preston so able a leader of the English Department for eighteen years, one thinks first of her human interest in her students and her teachers, a genuine culture, a delightful and subtle humor. A high professional standard is hers, and practical wisdom has characterized her decisions. From her teachers she has ever evoked individual talent and has utilized it for the enrichment of the English curriculum. The power to organize and execute without domination and the ability to harmonize the diverse personalities of a large department are elements of her leadership. They are the manifestation of that versatility of mind and serenity of spirit which have left an ineffaceable impress upon our department and our high school.

Chloe C. Anderson

M. ALICE LAMB

On behalf of the many students to whom Miss M. Alice Lamb has long been an inspiration, Caerulea pays tribute.

Not only has Miss Lamb taught Spanish, but for a number of years, has in addition, served as head of the Modern Language department. Her retirement will be keenly felt both by her pupils and her fellow teachers, in part because she added to her chosen career an unusually extensive experience of foreign travel.

For several years Miss Lamb taught in Puerta Rico. Then she volunteered for service with Friends Service Committee and spent a year in France during the first World War. In addition to several trips to Europe and to Latin America she has made one trip around the world.

May the leisure she will now enjoy be enriched by these memories and afford her opportunity for other enjoyable experiences.

Anna Bell Taber

ROSA LAWHON

Miss Rosa Lawhon's remarkable success in training students for engineering and technical schools can best be expressed by quoting Dr. J. E. Bell of the California Institute of Technology.

"I have sincere regard for her because she maintained high standards, was much interested in her students, and had such insight into their capacities that the Committee on Admissions sought her advice. The records of progress agreed with her previously expressed opinions. She is very unselfish and understanding person and her important work has been well done."

Hundreds of men and women now engaged in technical work say that they owe much to Miss Lawhon for the superior training in mathematics which she gave them. Her life energy was unselfishly spent for her students and her accomplishments will remain active for many years. . . in the lives and work of those whom she trained and guided.
